Their love was no secret, but did he dare tell her the rest of the truth?

Aurora Snow has a secret—one she inherited from her dying mother. Now she has to decide what to do about it, which is especially hard when she doesn't believe it can be true. For over forty years, she's never cared about what her mother was hiding about the past. Why should learning about her father change anything now? She's happy with herself, her art, and the new man in her life. Jeremiah is everything she ever dreamed of finding in a man. Isn't the perfect lover really all a woman needs to be happy?

Jeremiah Cranston has secrets. The biggest is that he's fallen crazily in love with the target of his investigation. His boss is already upset that he's sleeping with her. Jeremiah's more upset that he's having to lie to Aurora about his purpose in her life. Finding out she's a Dare would be the worst thing possible for both of them, even if it is his job to do just that. When all his secrets are revealed to Aurora, it's going to be hard as hell for him to protect a woman who hates him.
