This e-book is the first book in the “60-Minute Investor Series.” The author’s goal is to condense the teachings of professional investors and the findings of academics into short practical manuals. This desire for succinctness is driven by the author’s belief that investment success does not require a full grasp of high-math Ph.D. papers or 300-page books written by practitioners and academics. As long as the investor has enough common sense and a desire to succeed, basics can be taught in 10-15 pages. The real challenge is having enough conviction and willpower to stay put when Mr. Market throws his tantrums.
